MISSION of the State Universities

There are six comprehensive state universities—Bridgewater State University, Fitchburg State University, Framingham State University, Salem State University, Westfield State University, and Worcester State University—and three specialized colleges—Massachusetts College of Art and Design, Massachusetts College of Liberal Arts, and Massachusetts Maritime Academy. The six comprehensive state universities integrate liberal arts and sciences programs with professional education, and the three specialized colleges also focus on academic areas identified in the college's name.

Each state university places a special emphasis on teaching and lifelong learning and promotes a campus life that fosters intellectual, social, and ethical development. Committed to excellence in instruction and to providing responsive, innovative, and educational programs of high quality, they seek to develop each student's critical thinking, quantitative, technological, oral, and written communication skills, and practical appreciation of the arts, sciences, and humanities as they affect good citizenship and an improved quality of life. The state universities provide a campus environment where the ideas, values, perspectives, and contributions of all students are respected.

Massachusetts state universities are strategically located to facilitate access to baccalaureate and master's degree programs for Commonwealth residents who meet their high standards for admission. In recognition of their responsibilities to Massachusetts taxpayers to manage their resources efficiently and to maintain tuition and fees at a level as low as possible, each university has a distinctive academic focus based upon its established strengths and regional and state needs. Each university is a leader and resource for the community and contributes to the region's cultural, environmental, and economic development.

Below is a summary of the most frequent comments collected in the campus-wide survey regarding our mission.

When asked the critical mission of WSU, key issues emanating from the comments included:

- Populations Served: WSU should continue to serve students for whom it is important that it remain affordable. At the same time, increase diversity and admit underserved populations in a welcoming, safe, and secure environment.
- Regional Focus: It is important that WSU retain its role of contributing to the economic, social, and cultural vitality of the region, with service to the local community, Western Massachusetts and the Pioneer Valley, and the entire Commonwealth.
- Career: WSU trains students for jobs, careers, and workplace success; some viewing this as part of a well-rounded graduate along with liberal arts. Others view the two educational goals as in tension or contradictory.
- Liberal Arts: WSU should graduate leaders who as citizens are well informed members of society, with critical thinking skills, an understanding of social justice and world affairs, and life-long learners. Again, some view this in contrast with preparation for employment, while others consider the two complementary.
- Teaching: WSU's mission should be academic excellence—to provide a quality education to students, with the emphasis more on teaching than on the liberal arts/job preparation distinction.

For faculty and alumni, the mission of delivering a liberal arts education was most mentioned, followed by serving various populations and educational affordability, while staff most often mentioned teaching. and the populations served. Senior administrators more often valued the liberal arts tradition, followed by career preparation. Students did not respond to this question.

Westfield State Mission Statement: Our goal was to refine the mission statement to emphasize the mission critical features contained in the previous mission while considering the responses from the community regarding our mission moving forward, all within the context dictated by the Department of Higher Ed.
